Annotation Format for AP Lit

- Every student must complete 20 thoughtful annotations throughout the book neatly written on post it notes. Annotations should be in complete sentences.
- Every annotation must address at least one of three things:
  - Theme:
    - How does this passage relate to a big, complex idea that the author is asking us to contemplate?
    - Explain the relation between the theme and the passage rather than just stating it is present. (e.g., don't say "this part relates to unconditional love..."; say "the betrayal that takes place here calls into question whether the unconditional love the main character spoke of on page 22 is really possible or just a fantasy...")
  - Context:
    - How does this passage reflect the time, place, or social conditions in which the book was written.
    - Try to connect the context to a specific story element in a meaningful way. (don't say "the main character has a hard time because women had fewer rights then..."; say "the main character wants to trust her husband in this passage but he is too influenced by society to see her as his intellectual equal...")
  - Literary Elements (see huge list of AP lit terms at the end of this doc):
    - How does the author use a specific device or technique to create meaning?
    - Explain how the element functions rather than saying it exists. (don't say "this is a simile..."; say "the simile compares the character's brain to a computer hard drive because he sees himself as more of a machine than a person...")

W&R Annotation Rubric

Each of the 20 thoughtful, neatly written annotations must be numbered.

Grade Range: 100-90

The student included at least 20 thoughtful annotations. He or she made neat, numbered annotations throughout the text on post it notes. The student has included some of the following:

The student made little to no effort on his or her annotations.

A P LITERARY TERMS

ALLEGORY story or poem in which characters, settings, and events stand for other people or events or for abstract ideas or qualities.

EXAMPLE: Animal Farm; Dante's Inferno; Lord of the Flies

ALLITERATION repetition of the same or similar consonant sounds in words that are close together.

EXAMPLE: "When the two youths turned with the flag they saw that much of the regiment had crumbled away, and the dejected remnant was coming slowly back." –Stephen Crane (Note how regiment and remnant are being used; the regiment is gone, a remnant remains...)

ALLUSION reference to someone or something that is known from history, literature, religion, politics, sports, science, or another branch of culture. An indirect reference to something (usually from literature, etc.).

AMBIGUITY deliberately suggesting two or more different, and sometimes conflicting, meanings in a work. An event or situation that may be interpreted in more than one way - this is done on purpose by the author, when it is not done on purpose, it is vagueness, and detracts from the work.

ANALOGY Comparison made between two things to show how they are alike

ANAPHORA Repetition of a word, phrase, or clause at the beginning of two or more sentences in a row. This is a deliberate form of repetition and helps make the writer's point more coherent.

ANASTROPHE Inversion of the usual, normal, or logical order of the parts of a sentence. Purpose is rhythm or emphasis or euphony. It is a fancy word for inversion.

ANECDOTE Brief story, told to illustrate a point or serve as an example of something, often shows character of an individual

ANTAGONIST Opponent who struggles against or blocks the hero, or protagonist, in a story.

ANTIMETABOLE Repetition of words in successive clauses in reverse grammatical order.

Moliere: "One should eat to live, not live to eat." In poetry, this is called chiasmus.

ANTITHESIS Balancing words, phrases, or ideas that are strongly contrasted, often by means of grammatical structure.

ANTIHERO Central character who lacks all the qualities traditionally associated with heroes. may lack courage, grace, intelligence, or moral scruples.

ANTHROPOMORPHISM attributing human characteristics to an animal or inanimate object (Personification)

APHORISM brief, cleverly worded statement that makes a wise observation about life, or of a principle or accepted general truth. Also called maxim, epigram.

APOSTROPHE calling out to an imaginary, dead, or absent person, or to a place or thing, or a personified abstract idea. If the character is asking a god or goddess for inspiration it is called an invocation.

Josiah Holland ---“Loacöon! Thou great embodiment/ Of human life and human history!”

APPOSITION Placing in immediately succeeding order of two or more coordinate elements, the latter of which is an explanation, qualification, or modification of the first (often set off by a colon). Paine: “These are the times that try men’s souls: The summer soldier and the sunshine patriot will in this crisis, shrink from the service of his country; but he that stands it Now, deserves the love and thanks of man and woman.”

ASSONANCE the repetition of similar vowel sounds followed by different consonant sounds especially in words that are together.

ASYNDETON Commas used without conjunction to separate a series of words, thus emphasizing the parts equally: instead of X, Y, and Z... the writer uses X,Y,Z.... see polysyndeton.

BALANCE Constructing a sentence so that both halves are about the same length and importance. Sentences can be unbalanced to serve a special effect as well.

CHARACTERIZATION the process by which the writer reveals the personality of a character.

INDIRECT CHARACTERIZATION the author reveals to the reader what the character is like by describing how the character looks and dresses, by letting the reader hear what the character says, by revealing the character’s private thoughts and feelings, by revealing the characters effect on other people (showing how other characters feel or behave toward the character), or by showing the character in action. Common in modern literature

DIRECT CHARACTERIZATION the author tells us directly what the character is like: sneaky, generous, mean to pets and so on. Romantic style literature relied more heavily on this form.

STATIC CHARACTER is one who does not change much in the course of a story.

DYNAMIC CHARACTER is one who changes in some important way as a result of the story’s action.

FLAT CHARACTER has only one or two personality traits. They are one dimensional, like a piece of cardboard. They can be summed up in one phrase.

ROUND CHARACTER has more dimensions to their personalities---they are complex, just a real people are.

CHIASMUS In poetry, a type of rhetorical balance in which the second part is syntactically balanced against the first, but with the parts reversed. Coleridge: “Flowers are lovely, love is flowerlike.” In prose this is called antimetabole.

CLICHE is a word or phrase, often a figure of speech, that has become lifeless because of overuse. Avoid clichés like the plague. (That cliché is intended.)

COLLOQUIALISM a word or phrase in everyday use in conversation and informal writing but is inappropriate for formal situations.

Example: "He's out of his head if he thinks I'm gonna go for such a stupid idea.

COMEDY in general, a story that ends with a happy resolution of the conflicts faced by the main character or characters.

CONCEIT an elaborate metaphor that compares two things that are startlingly different. Often an extended metaphor.

CONFESSIONAL POETRY a twentieth century term used to describe poetry that uses intimate material from the poet's life.

CONFLICT the struggle between opposing forces or characters in a story.

EXTERNAL CONFLICT conflicts can exist between two people, between a person and nature or a machine or between a person a whole society.

INTERNAL CONFLICT a conflict can be internal, involving opposing forces within a person's mind.

CONNOTATION the associations and emotional overtones that have become attached to a word or phrase, in addition to its strict dictionary definition.

COUPLET two consecutive rhyming lines of poetry.

DIALECT a way of speaking that is characteristic of a certain social group or of the inhabitants of a certain geographical area.

DICTION a speaker or writer's choice of words.

DIDACTIC form of fiction or nonfiction that teaches a specific lesson or moral or provides a model of correct behavior or thinking.

ELEGY a poem of mourning, usually about someone who has died. A Eulogy is great praise or commendation, a laudatory speech, often about someone who has died.

EPANALEPSIS device of repetition in which the same expression (single word or phrase) is repeated both at the beginning and at the end of the line, clause, or sentence. Voltaire: "Common sense is not so common."

EPIC a long narrative poem, written in heightened language , which recounts the deeds of a heroic character who embodies the values of a particular society.

EPIGRAPH a quotation or aphorism at the beginning of a literary work suggestive of the theme.

EPISTROPHE Device of repetition in which the same expression (single word or phrase) is repeated at the end of two or more lines, clauses, or sentences (it is the opposite of anaphora).

EPITHET an adjective or adjective phrase applied to a person or thing that is frequently used to emphasize a characteristic quality. "Father of our country" and "the great Emancipator" are examples. A Homeric epithet is a compound adjective used with a person or thing: "swift-footed Achilles"; "rosy-fingered dawn."

ESSAY a short piece of nonfiction prose in which the writer discusses some aspect of a subject.

ESSAY TYPES TO KNOW:

ARGUMENTATION one of the four forms of discourse which uses logic, ethics, and emotional appeals (logos, ethos, pathos) to develop an effective means to convince the reader to think or act in a certain way.

PERSUASION relies more on emotional appeals than on facts

ARGUMENT form of persuasion that appeals to reason instead of emotion to convince an audience to think or act in a certain way.

CAUSAL RELATIONSHIP Form of argumentation in which the writer claims that one thing results from another, often used as part of a logical argument.

DESCRIPTION a form of discourse that uses language to create a mood or emotion.

EXPOSITION one of the four major forms of discourse, in which something is explained or “set forth.”

NARRATIVE the form of discourse that tells about a series of events.

EXPLICATION act of interpreting or discovering the meaning of a text, usually involves close reading and special attention to figurative language.

FABLE a very short story told in prose or poetry that teaches a practical lesson about how to succeed in life.

FARCE a type of comedy in which ridiculous and often stereotyped characters are involved in silly, far-fetched situations.

FIGURATIVE LANGUAGE Words which are inaccurate if interpreted literally, but are used to describe. Similes and metaphors are common forms.

FLASHBACK a scene that interrupts the normal chronological sequence of events in a story to depict something that happened at an earlier time.

FOIL A character who acts as contrast to another character. Often a funny side kick to the dashing hero, or a villain contrasting the hero.

FORESHADOWING the use of hints and clues to suggest what will happen later in a plot.

FREE VERSE poetry that does not conform to a regular meter or rhyme scheme.

HYPERBOLE a figure of speech that uses an incredible exaggeration or overstatement, for effect. “If I told you once, I’ve told you a million times....”

HYPOTACTIC sentence marked by the use of connecting words between clauses or sentences, explicitly showing the logical or other relationships between them. (Use of such syntactic subordination of just one clause to another is known as hypotaxis).

I am tired because it is hot.

IMAGERY the use of language to evoke a picture or a concrete sensation of a person , a thing, a place, or an experience.

INVERSION the reversal of the normal word order in a sentence or phrase.

IRONY a discrepancy between appearances and reality.

VERBAL IRONY occurs when someone says one thing but really means something else.

SITUATIONAL IRONY takes place when there is a discrepancy between what is expected to happen, or what would be appropriate to happen, and what really does happen.

DRAMATIC IRONY is so called because it is often used on stage. A character in the play or story thinks one thing is true, but the audience or reader knows better.

JUXTAPOSITION poetic and rhetorical device in which normally unassociated ideas, words, or phrases are placed next to one another, creating an effect of surprise and wit.

Ezra Pound: "The apparition of these faces in the crowd;/ Petals on a wet, black bough."

Juxtaposition is also a form of contrast by which writers call attention to dissimilar ideas or images or metaphors.

Martin Luther King: "Injustice anywhere is a threat to justice everywhere."

LITOTES is a form of understatement in which the positive form is emphasized through the negation of a negative form: Hawthorne--- "...the wearers of petticoat and farthingale...stepping forth into the public ways, and wedging their not unsubstantial persons, if occasion were, into the throng..."

LOCAL COLOR a term applied to fiction or poetry which tends to place special emphasis on a particular setting, including its customs, clothing, dialect and landscape.

LOOSE SENTENCE one in which the main clause comes first, followed by further dependent grammatical units. See periodic sentence.

Hawthorne: "Hester gazed after him a little while, looking with a half-fantastic curiosity to see whether the tender grass of early spring would not be blighted beneath him, and show the wavering track of this footsteps, sere and brown, across its cheerful verdure."

LYRIC POEM a poem that does not tell a story but expresses the personal feelings or thoughts of the speaker. A ballad tells a story.

METAPHOR a figure of speech that makes a comparison between two unlike things without the use of such specific words of comparison as like, as, than, or resembles.

IMPLIED METAPHOR does not state explicitly the two terms of the comparison: "I like to see it lap the miles" is an implied metaphor in which the verb lap implies a comparison between "it" and some animal that "laps" up water.

EXTENDED METAPHOR is a metaphor that is extended or developed as far as the writer wants to take it. (conceit if it is quite elaborate).

DEAD METAPHOR is a metaphor that has been used so often that the comparison is no longer vivid: "The head of the house", "the seat of the government", "a knotty problem" are all dead metaphors.

MIXED METAPHOR is a metaphor that has gotten out of control and mixes its terms so that they are visually or imaginatively incompatible. "The President is a lame duck who is running out of gas.”

METONYMY a figure of speech in which a person, place, or thing, is referred to by something closely associated with it. “We requested from the crown support for our petition.” The crown is used to represent the monarch.

MOOD An atmosphere created by a writer’s diction and the details selected.

MOTIF a recurring image, word, phrase, action, idea, object, or situation used throughout a work (or in several works by one author), unifying the work by tying the current situation to previous ones, or new ideas to the theme. Kurt Vonnegut uses “So it goes” throughout Slaughterhouse-Five to remind the reader of the senselessness of death.

MOTIVATION the reasons for a character’s behavior.

ONOMATOPOEIA the use of words whose sounds echo their sense. “Pop.” “Zap.”

OXYMORON a figure of speech that combines opposite or contradictory terms in a brief phrase. “Jumbo shrimp.” “Pretty ugly.” “Bitter-sweet”

PARABLE a relatively short story that teaches a moral, or lesson about how to lead a good life.

PARADOX a statement that appears self-contradictory, but that reveals a kind of truth.

KOAN is a paradox used in Zen Buddhism to gain intuitive knowledge: “What is the sound of one hand clapping?”

PARALLEL STRUCTURE (parallelism) the repetition of words or phrases that have similar grammatical structures.

PARATACTIC SENTENCE simply juxtaposes clauses or sentences. I am tired: it is hot.

PARODY a work that makes fun of another work by imitating some aspect of the writer’s style.

PERIODIC sentence that places the main idea or central complete thought at the end of the sentence, after all introductory elements.

Literary Terms page 8

PERSONIFICATION a figure of speech in which an object or animal is given human feelings, thoughts, or attitudes.

PLOT the series of related events in a story or play, sometimes called the storyline.

Characteristics of PLOT:

EXPOSITION introduces characters, situation, and setting

RISING ACTION complications in conflict and situations (may introduce new ones as well)

CLIMAX that point in a plot that creates the greatest intensity, suspense, or interest. Also called “turning point”

RESOLUTION the conclusion of a story, when all or most of the conflicts have been settled; often called the denouement.

POINT OF VIEW the vantage point from which the writer tells the story.

FIRST PERSON POINT OF VIEW one of the characters tells the story.

THIRD PERSON POINT OF VIEW an unknown narrator, tells the story, but this narrator zooms in to focus on the thoughts and feelings of only one character.

OMNISCIENT POINT OF VIEW an omniscient or all knowing narrator tells the story, also using the third person pronouns. This narrator, instead of focusing on one character only, often tells us everything about many characters.

OBJECTIVE POINT OF VIEW a narrator who is totally impersonal and objective tells the story, with no comment on any characters or events.

POLYSYNDETON sentence which uses a conjunction with NO commas to separate the items in a series. Instead of X, Y, and Z... Polysyndeton results in X and Y and Z... Kurt Vonnegut uses this device.

PROTAGONIST the central character in a story, the one who initiates or drives the action. Usually the hero or anti-hero; in a tragic hero, like John Proctor of The Crucible, there is always a hamartia, or tragic flaw in his character which will lead to his downfall.

PUN a "play on words" based on the multiple meanings of a single word or on words that sound alike but mean different things.

QUATRAIN a poem consisting of four lines, or four lines of a poem that can be considered as a unit.

REFRAIN a word, phrase, line, or group of lines that is repeated, for effect, several times in a poem.

RHYTHM a rise and fall of the voice produced by the alternation of stressed and unstressed syllables in language.

RHETORIC Art of effective communication, especially persuasive discourse.

RHETORICAL QUESTION a question asked for an effect, and not actually requiring an answer.

ROMANCE in general, a story in which an idealized hero or heroine undertakes a quest and is successful.

SATIRE a type of writing that ridicules the shortcomings of people or institutions in an attempt to bring about a change.

SIMILE a figure of speech that makes an explicitly comparison between two unlike things, using words such as like, as, than, or resembles.

SOLILOQUY a long speech made by a character in a play while no other characters are on stage.

STEREOTYPE a fixed idea or conception of a character or an idea which does not allow for any individuality, often based on religious, social, or racial prejudices.

STREAM OF CONSCIOUSNESS a style of writing that portrays the inner (often chaotic) workings of a character's mind.

STYLE the distinctive way in which a writer uses language: a writer's distinctive use of diction, tone, and syntax.

SUSPENSE a feeling of uncertainty and curiosity about what will happen next in a story.

SYMBOL a person, place, thing, or event that has meaning in itself and that also stands for something more than itself.

SYNECDOCHE a figure of speech in which a part represents the whole. "If you don't drive properly, you will lose your wheels." The wheels represent the entire car.

SYNTACTIC FLUENCY Ability to create a variety of sentence structures, appropriately complex and/or simple and varied in length.

Literary Terms page 10

SYNTACTIC PERMUTATION Sentence structures that are extraordinarily complex and involved. Often difficult for a reader to follow.

TALL TALE an outrageously exaggerated, humorous story that is obviously unbelievable.

TELEGRAPHIC SENTENCE A sentence shorter than five words in length.

THEME the insight about human life that is revealed in a literary work.

TONE the attitude a writer takes toward the subject of a work, the characters in it, or the audience, revealed through diction, figurative language, and organization.

TRAGEDY in general, a story in which a heroic character either dies or comes to some other unhappy end.

TRICOLON Sentence of three parts of equal importance and length, usually three independent clauses.

UNDERSTATEMENT a statement that says less than what is meant.

Example: During the second war with Iraq, American troops complained of a fierce sand storm that made even the night-vision equipment useless. A British commando commented about the storm: "It's a bit breezy."

UNITY Unified parts of the writing are related to one central idea or organizing principle. Unity is dependent upon coherence.

VERNACULAR the language spoken by the people who live in a particular locality.
